

BETHANY RESERVOIR

STATE RECREATION AREA

WELCOME! Tucked between rolling hills of annual grasslands and below one of many local windmill farms lies a secluded park known as Bethany Reservoir State Recreation Area. This 608-acre park's reservoir in northeastern Alameda County provides water-based recreation and a variety of bass and other fish for anglers to hook. It also features a bike trail along the California Aqueduct Bikeway. Strong westerly winds sweep the gently rolling hillsides year-round, making the reservoir an ideal venue for sailing. Foggy or rainy winter temperatures dip into the 40s. Early spring brings a profusion of hillside poppies. Dry summers hovering in the high 90s segue into cooler autumns.

ACTIVITIES

California Aqueduct Bikeway—The 1.5-mile paved path along the reservoir leads to the start of the California Aqueduct. Along the path, keep an eye out for birds like hawks, eagles and cormorants hiding in the trees.

Accessible Features—A generally accessible fishing platform is available in the main parking lot, near the boat launch. Also accessible are three picnic tables, parking and a restroom.

Boating—Explore the 6 miles of shoreline surrounding 160 surface acres of water from your small boat, canoe or kayak. Speed limit is 5 mph. The launch ramp is near the park entrance. Boat access is forbidden near the dams at the northwestern and southeastern ends of the reservoir.

Fishing—A boat ramp provides easy launch for small fishing or self-propelled boats. Anglers may catch crappie, catfish, bluegill and five types of bass. Persons age 16 and over must carry a valid fishing license. For specific fishing regulations, visit wildlife.ca.gov. Please recycle your used fishing line at the five stations throughout the park. See map and information on reverse side for approximate locations.

Picnicking—Shaded picnic ramadas are located close to the boat ramp near the park's entrance.

Sailing—Sailboards and catamarans will find plenty of propulsion on most days, with a mean wind speed above 7 mph and gusting to 12 mph.
